

I am unalterably opposed to the CBA's effort to impose the federal "established business relationship" exemption on Indiana consumers. I do not want entities that I do business with, like banks, credit card companies, phone companies, to call me at any time. I am protected by the nation's toughest telephone privacy act, and I do not want it overturned or weakened by special interests. It is time for the onus to be on the business to respect privacy, not on consumers to protect themselves. I resent that I have to pay for Caller ID and Privacy Manager to protect myself from intrusion by sales calls.
